PMA SAVINGS REPORT · SAMPLE

€158k a year in airframe and cabin parts

We matched 43 part numbers against 1,383 FAA Parts Manufacturer Approvals for the A320 family. 37 have an approved replacement your engineers could consider, worth an estimated €157,582 a year at 70% realisation. This sample uses real FAA PMA records with illustrative quantities and prices.

Next step: we source the parts

Zirine requests quotes from the PMA holders, checks certification (FAA-signed Form 8130-3 with the statement EASA expects) and supplies the parts at the holder's price plus a fixed 10% fee. Your engineers approve each part first; you only order what they approve.

Method

- Part numbers matched exactly to the FAA DRS "approved replacement for" field, then ignoring dashes and spaces (flagged for review).
- Excluded ATA chapters: 49, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80. Life-limited parts and critical, non-licensed PMA parts are excluded.
- Saving: an assumed 35% discount, times your spend, times 70% realisation.
- one part number with a PMA were excluded by these rules.

Before use

- Non-critical FAA PMA parts are accepted for EU-registered aircraft under the EU–US bilateral; critical non-licensed parts need an EASA STC.
- Your CAMO confirms each part against its engineering policy and your aircraft configuration (MSN, mod status).
- Check lease return conditions for leased tails.
- Prices are not public; quotes from the PMA holders replace the assumed discount.
